Why migrate to Koha ILS?

Portability / Accessibility

- ability to run in different hardware/software platforms (can work in any device with browser)
- can be accessed anywhere with Internet connection (vs. local network/client-server)

Integration / Standardization

- More efficient search via single portal (vs. multiple, unstandardized databases)
- MARC21 compliant
- Easier linkage

Flexibility

- Open source updates/upgrades (vs. custom code)

Maintenance / Support

- Mature/robust system - less need for testing (vs. prolonged development time and testing/debugging)
- Cloud server, backup (vs. costly database/web server maintenance)
- Presence of Koha community

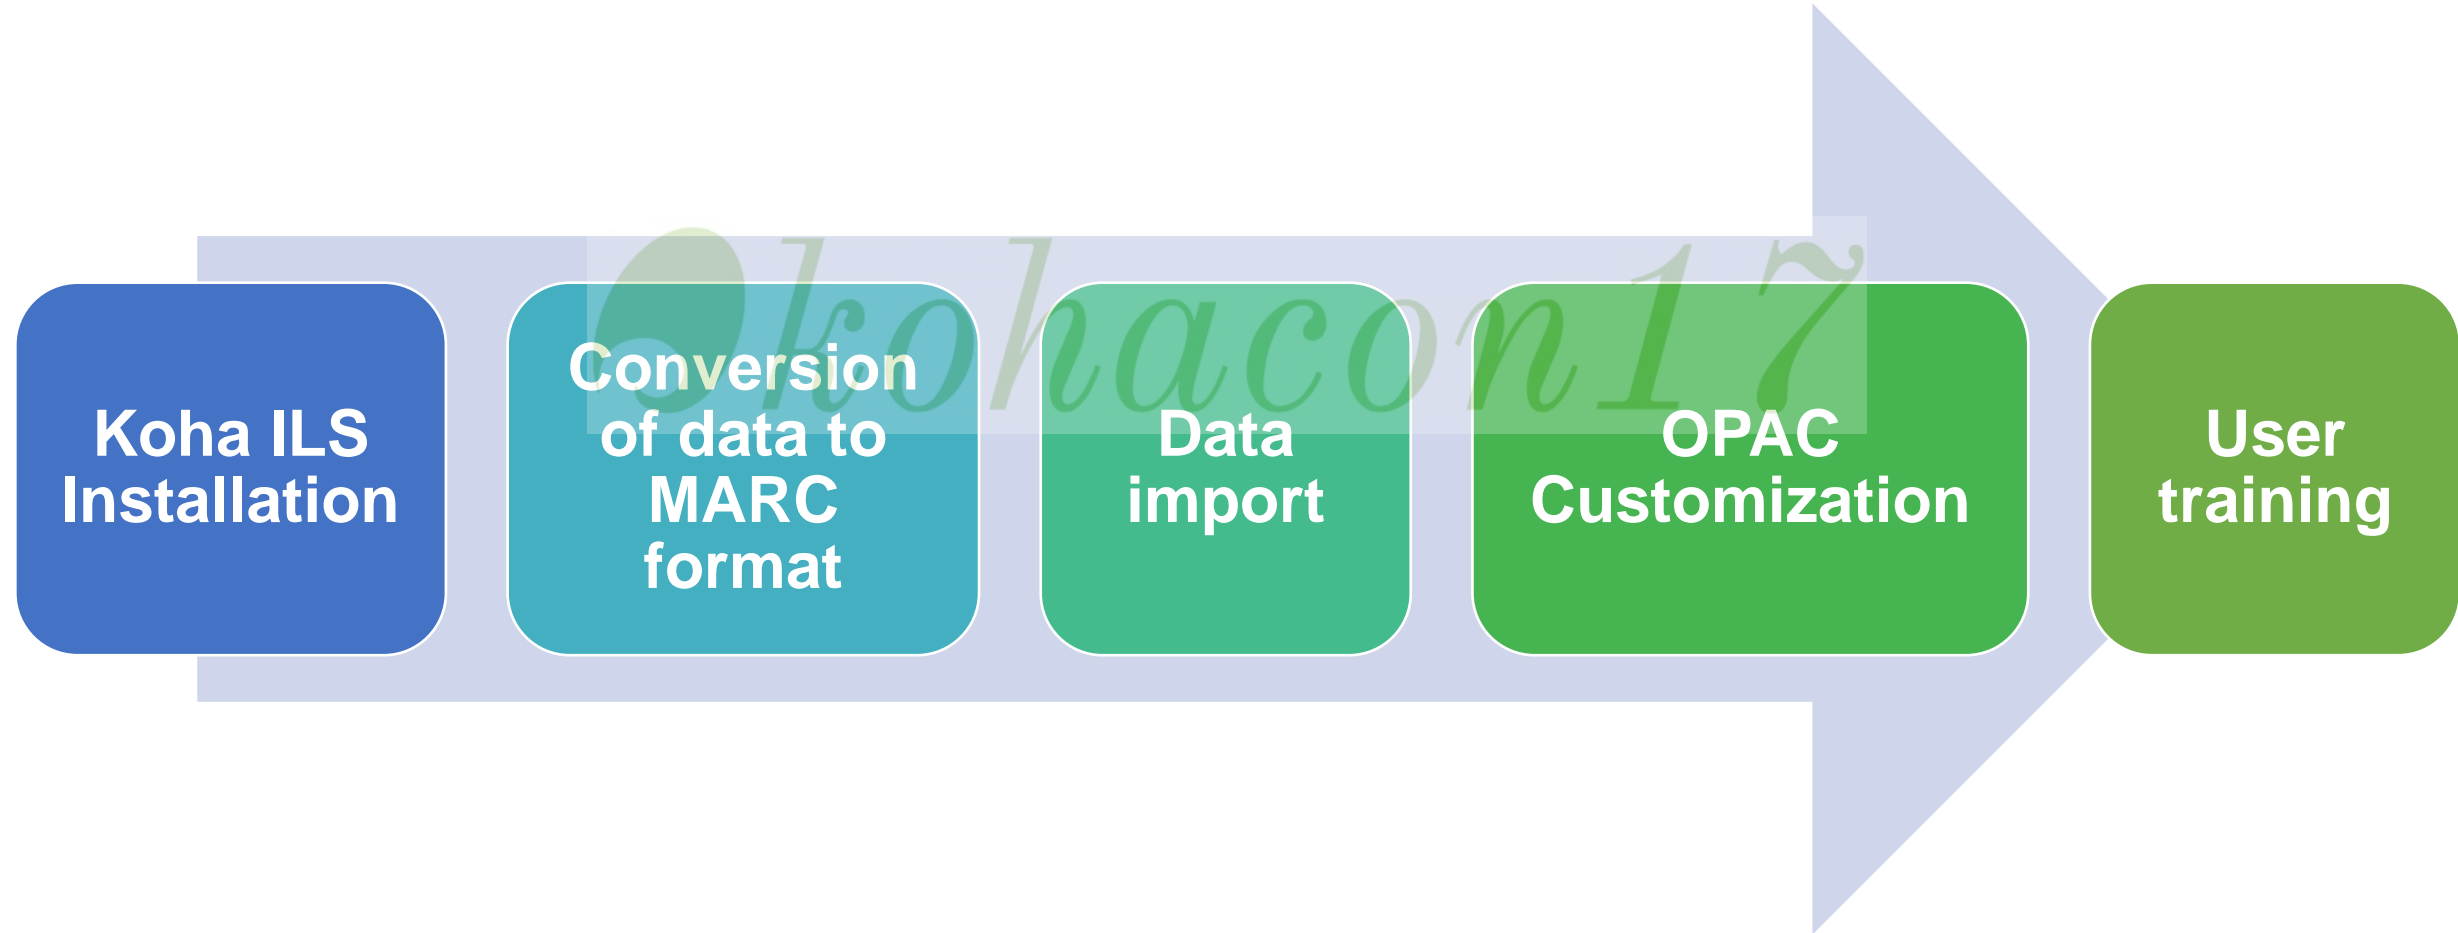

Cost

- Free open source system (excluding upgrades, customization, manhours costs) vs. costly programming fees for custom code

Usability / Performance

- Feature-rich
- Improved user interface

Key / Mode: A minor

Genre: Songs of Reflection / Longing

Form: Rock Ballad

Historical Period: Contemporary

Date of Composition: 1978

Premiere Performance: First performed by Freddie Aguilar in the First Metro Manila Popular Music Festival in 1978

About the Song: A hit in Asia and translated into a dozen languages (including English, Japanese, French, Russian, and German), Aguilar's first hit is among the most popular folk ballads ever recorded in the Philippines. The song dwells on the sacrifices made by doting parents for their children, upholding traditional family values and criticizing prodigal children who forget what their parents have done for them once they have grown. The lyrics are
